AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

Mr. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

An Obsolescent Sound.

In the processes of change and decay that are incidental to the growth of a spoken language, it is interesting to note the appearances of certain peculiarities of speech and the disappearance of others. A general change in a certain sound often takes more than a generation to accomplish itself. People are, fortunately, pretty conservative in the matter of pronunciation.

Such a gradual process appears now to be going on, by which the sound of the letter r after a vowel is becoming obsolete. The letter r is called the let-tah ah. This used to be considered an affectation in this part of the country. Boston people were ridiculed for speaking of culchah; but that word is now pronounced in that way by at least as many New-Yorkers as Bostonians. It is now noticeable among the older generation here; but the young ladies, some of the young men, and nearly all the children under fifteen years of age, now pronounce New York Ne-Yawk, and other words to correspond. Go into any public school in this city and ask the children to tell you who was the first President of the United States, and they will respond unanimously, "Jawge Washington." Ask about the present incumbent of that office, and they will say his name is Abthuh. Ask them a categorical question, and they will cry, "Yes, sah!" or "No, sah!" And this notwithstanding the fact that in the primary department they were dr-r-r-illed to say br-r-roth-er-r, with a tremendous tr-r-rill on the rs. For many years this sound of r has been left in the South; in New England you shall seldom hear it; on Long Island it never by any possibility salutes your ear; and now that it is dying out in New York with the present generation, it is likely to disappear entirely east of the Rocky Mountains.

The disappearances of the sound will greatly complicate the labors of the spelling reformers. Some of the combinations that are produced by suppressing the r are incapable of representation by the present alphabet. There is a lingering on some of the syllables, as in the word heart, pronounced, as nearly as we can represent it, hah-ut, which almost defies notation.

The varieties of sound produced in different combinations of letters by the substitution for r of the sound of u in but—which most often takes the place—are too numerous for us to follow out in the space at our command. They would make a paper long enough for presentation at the meeting of a philological society. We wish simply to call the attention of students of language to this movement, which is widespread and certainly growing. To a greater degree than they imagine, the sound of r after a vowel is obsolescent.—N. Y. Mail.

Lucky Baby Theebaw.

There are a good many fortunate babies in this world, but the baby that is able to call the turn on the luckiest of them all happens to be the son of King Theebaw, of Burmah. His doting and royal papa has just bought him a $1,000,000 cradle in which to be rocked to sleep. If the rest of the possessions of the royal baby are at all in proportion to the cradle he sleeps in, the rest of the babies are justified in turning green with envy. There would appear to be one drawback to perfect bliss in the lot of this fortunate mortal. The royal Burmese baby may be rocked in a $1,000,000 cradle, but he has no guarantee that his head will stay on his shoulders for any length of time. It is not probable, however, that the fortunate heir to the Burmese throne will lose any sleep on that account.—Detroit Free Press.

HOME AND FARM.

—Let clothes that fade soak over night in one ounce of lead in a pail of water.

—The crop of potatoes in Great Britain this year is less by 57,000 bushels than last year. Very few, if any, will be shipped to this country.

—Cold roast beef is very nice broiled. Cut it into slices about a quarter of an inch thick and have it as rare as possible; sprinkle with pepper and salt and put it on the gridiron and let it heat quickly; turn it over four times in the same number of minutes, and serve when hot on a dish with melted butter.—Chicago News.

—Baking Powder Biscuit: Into two quarts of flour, sift five teaspoonfuls of baking powder, mixing it in evenly. Rub into this a piece of lard the size of half an egg. Mix with good sweet milk into a soft dough. Do not knead. Roll medium thickness, cut out with a biscuit-cutter, and bake in a very hot oven.—Country Gentleman.

—The absorption of a speck in the eye of a horse, if resulting from inflammation, may often be hastened by blowing some burned alum through a goose quill into the eye. A good cooling dressing is four grains of sugar of lead, dissolved in one ounce of rainwater; or sulphate of zinc may be used instead of the lead. A rag saturated with the solution should be hung over the eye and the animal kept in a dark stable for some days.—N. Y. Herald.

—Many farmers of Oregon and Washington Territory have devoted their attention to hop culture. This year they raised a fine crop, estimated at 2,000,000 pounds. Many farmers have sold at 75 cents a pound, and others are holding for a higher price. This fine crop will bring a great sum to the farmers. It seems that the region is abundantly suited to hop culture, and a good supply may be expected from that quarter in future.—Chicago Journal.

—The bottom of every well and cistern should be examined at least twice a year, especially if not closely covered. Sticks, filth, worms, toads, etc., often fall in and injure the water. A mirror or piece of common looking-glass held so as to throw the sun's rays to the bottom will show everything very plainly, even through a dozen feet of water or more. In some situations, as in a cellar cistern, two or more mirrors may be needed to carry in the light, by double or triple reflection of the rays.

A Vindictive Policeman.

About the time the Austin City Council reduced the wages of the police, a policeman came upon two boys who were busy shooting at a target with a pistol, inside of the city limits, contrary to the city ordinance.

"Boys, that's contrary to law, and besides you may shoot each other. If you don't stop, I'll have to arrest you."

"No, you won't arrest us. Our father is an Alderman."

"Is your father an Alderman, sure enough?" asked the policeman, thinking of the reduction of his salary by the City Council.

"Yes, sir."

"Then keep on shooting, boys, as far as I am concerned. I am in hopes you will shoot your blanked heads off."—Austin Siftings.

—The Journal, of Stanford, Ky., says: "On the cupola of the court house the other morning there were as distinctly portrayed in the frost as if done by the hand of an artist, a large nest with two birds sitting on it, a couple of old women, and the letter X. They were viewed by a number of citizens till the rays of the sun blotted them out forever."

NEWS BREVITIES.

The Emperor William is ill.
The revolution is progressing in Ecuador.

George Biemiller, of Allegheny, Pa., has been arrested for beating his wife, who lay dying of typhoid fever.

Ostrich farming seems to be profitable in South Australia. Mr. W. Malcolm, at Gawler, keeps seventy-four ostriches, most of them reared by himself.

In the Khoysa district, India, which comprises a considerable portion of the Sunderbunds, more than fifty people—timber cutting and collecting in the jungle—were killed by tigers during the last fiscal year.

In the English franking days, West-end of London business houses used to get their letters franked by those of their customers who had the privilege, and would "write off" certain accounts in consideration of that service.

The Rev. Mr. Northcott, pastor of the Third Congressional Church of Toledo, got his pay weekly, and the Treasurer of the church always handed over a lot of mutilated coin that came from the contribution box. As barrooms were the only places where that sort of money was taken at par, Mr. Northcott objected so strenuously that he finally brought upon himself the hostility of the church, and now he must go.

London is enormous, but the statement that it contains 5,000,000 people is apt to mislead. What is called the metropolitan area, consisting of land within a radius of fifteen miles of Charing Cross, does contain very nearly that number; but estimating in this manner from the City Hall, our metropolitan area would probably include 3,000,000. To talk, therefore, of London having 5,000,000 people is delusive.

It has been thought expedient to postpone Prince Albert Victor's residence at Oxford till the Easter term, and perhaps wisely, as the place is not particularly healthy during the early months of the year. The young Prince will pass some time both at Oxford and at Cambridge, as it is the Queen's wish that his education should be conducted on the lines drawn out for the Prince of Wales by the Prince Consort.

On April 18, 1850, there broke over Dublin a storm such as it is predicted will occur here in March. The morning was fine, but at two o'clock, p. m., the mercury fell, rapidly, though the sun was shining. A little later a hurricane unparalleled in the latitude set in. By the official survey of four districts out of six, 294,302 panes were broken, and the damage in glass alone exceeded $135,000. The glaziers alone kept up their spirits.

A young woman in Bradford county, Pa., went before a justice of the Peace with the man of her choice and several witnesses, and made herself a wife, satisfactorily to herself, by a simple promise of fidelity, claiming nothing from her spouse as a legal right, and insisted upon no ceremony. There were now vows given under the form of the law, and no pledges. The Justice took no part in the marriage, but sat in the room only as a witness.

The gradual emancipation of the slaves in Brazil has not only permitted the country to prepare itself for the adoption of free labor, but its influence on immigration has also been most marked. From 1864 to 1872 the average yearly number of immigrants was under 9,000. In 1872 a law was passed in favor of gradual emancipation, and from that date to 1879 the immigrants averaged very nearly 23,000 annually—almost three times the average before the enactment. The next two years showed nearly the same results; but then a notable increase was observed, and from the 1st of January to the 31st of December, 1881, 39,784 immigrants landed in Brazil.

The London Truth tells this story of a distinguished London barrister: "When his young wife, to whom he was devotedly attached, was upon her death-bed, a heavy and important case in which he was retained came on for hearing. His presence being absolutely indispensable in the interest of his client, Mr. Webster, with wonderful self control, took his place in court and spoke for several hours, returning at the end of the day to his wife's side in time to hear her last words. The next morning, though he was heart-broken and overwhelmed with grief, he appeared in court again, pale and determined, and resumed his speech, only leaving when he could safely do so."

JOHN BROWN and Wm. McGuire suspected of robberies at Manchester, Aberdeen and West Union were arrested at Ripley last week by Marshal Durham, of Aberdeen, assisted by Capt. Wm. Riggs and others. Thomas W. Connelly, a Manchester officer, subsequently seized a lot of implements supposed to be burglar's tools on a covered boat at the mouth of Red Oak Creek.

SOME five or six years ago Mr. M. M.
Walker, who lives near Tollesboro, in Lewis county, had a horse stolen from him that was valued very highly by himself and family. Vigilant efforts were made at the time to recover the animal, but without success. No clue as to the thieves or the whereabouts of the animal could be gained. After these unsuccessful efforts to recover the animal were made the matter was dropped and the affair almost forgotten. But, strange things will happen, sometimes. Sunday morning, Mr. W. H.
Means, who is, we believe, a relative of Mr. Walker, was coming to this city on the steamer Boston. At one of the landings above here some horses were brought aboard the boat to be shipped to Cincinnati. Among the number Mr. Means thought he recognized the animal that had been stolen some years ago from Mr. Walker. A closer inspection of the animal convinced him that such, indeed, was the fact. On Mr. Means' arrival at this place he sent word to Mr. Walker, who came to town and took passage on the Scotia Sunday night for Cincinnati. A dispatch was sent Sunday evening to the authorities at that place to seize the animal on the arrival of the Boston, and hold it until Mr. Walker could reach Cincinnati when the matter could be investigated.

Off for Grayson.

The Emmet Rifles, with full ranks, and

One Woman's Life.

Miss Bertha Welby, an actress well and widely known will appear at the Opera House, next Wednesday evening in Elliot
Barnes' latest American drama, "One Woman's Life." The Oil city Derrick contains the following:

Bertha Welby was greeted with a packed house last evening in witness her new play,
"One Woman's Life." The piece was an excellent and entertaining one, the charming actress bringing out every part of the four acts in a most brilliant manner.

The story of the play is as follows: Agnes Hamilton, having served for some years a miserly old tyrant named Major Franklin, has been led to believe that she will inherit his fortune; but a few days before his death the old man makes another will in favor of a son, of whom nothing has been heard for some years past. Agnes, in a fit of rage and disappointment, seizes the second will and burns it, but in so doing it is only partly destroyed and the part remaining comes into the possession of a housebreaker. Three years now elapses, and Agnes, now rich and a Marchioness, falls in love with a young artist who is no other than the missing son of the Major. She is just on the point of marrying him when Joe, Travers, the thief, appears with the remnant of the partly destroyed will. Agnes confesses her crime and after making all over to the rightful heir, retires into seclusion and becomes destitute and almost dying of starvation. At this point she is discovered by the friends of her prosperity who rescue her and finally bring about a reconciliation between the repentant
Agnes and her now rich lover and all ends well.
Miss Welby is a lady of prepossessing person and the possessor of dramatic qualifications which are doubtless destined to secure her advancement in popular regard, and is gifted with remarkable talents. As the play advanced she rapidly won the sympathy of the audience, and at the close of the first act she had worked herself completely into their affections. Miss Welby is an emotional actress of great power, and will win a high rank in the profession. Her acting is easy, graceful and natural in the extreme; her voice sweet, clear well modulated, resonant and under perfect control, stamping her as one of the leading actresses on the American stage. In the second and third acts, Miss Welby received a genuine ovation from the enthusiastic audience, who were not contented until she made her appearance before the curtain. Miss Alda Trimble is also an actress of high order and sustained her part throughout most admirably. Mr. Robert P. Gale, as the heavy swell was happy to a degree. Mr. John D. Walsh, as a tramp pictured that much abused individual true to nature.
The various characters were very well sustained, and taken as a whole, we seldom have had the pleasure of witnessing a better company.
The setting of the play was very fine throughout, and the dresses and diamonds of Miss Welby and Miss Trimble were magnificent beyond description.

Mr. H. A. D'Arcy, Miss Welby's efficient manager, brought to the Derrick office last evening the following gems and golden ornaments which have been presented to Miss Welby, from time to time as a reward of her powers as an actress. There are one hundred and sixty-seven gems in all each and everyone a beauty, and worth in the aggregate $17,000.
The costumes of Miss Welby were in keeping with the jewels. Rich and rare was the garb she wore and all eyes had been laid under tribute to furnish them:

1. Ring, two diamonds, one moonstone;
2. Ring, nine diamonds;
3. Ring, five diamonds;
4. Ring, six diamonds, six sapphires;
5. Ring, three diamonds;
6. Ring, three diamonds;
7. Ring, eight diamonds;
8. Bracelet, five diamonds;
9. Star and crescent brooch, seventeen diamonds;
10. Solitaire earrings;
11. Bracelet, ten diamonds;
12. Brooch, seven diamonds;
13. Brooch, four diamonds, presented for playing Nancy Oakes;
14. Brooch, twenty-eight diamonds;
15. Brooch, twenty-two diamonds;
16. Brooch, fifteen diamonds;
17. Comb, seven diamonds;

The Lexington Transcript truthfully says: "The way to kill the enterprise of a city is to throttle it with an advance of rents, just the moment a new citizen moves in."

Referring to the trial of Neal and Craft
at Grayson, the Portsmouth Times says:

It is said that parties from the Kentucky side of the river have visited Ironton and Portsmouth to see what guns and ammunition can be secured. The four cannon in our park have been discussed, and while we are not prepared to believe that they will be utilized, it might be well enough to keep an eye on them.

Good may come from a revised tariff, when it is once completed. Many industries are now badly paralyzed, owing to present agitation and uncertainty.
Many thousands of workingmen are out of employment because employers dare not proceed, and fortunes are lost, and values effected in consequence. The Congressman who hinders a speedy settlement of the matter is not a patriot. Democrats all over the land will be glad to know that their representatives in Congress are behaving in a business-like and patriotic manner. The course of the Democratic party, thus far, has been wise, moderate and with the people.

THE BALLAD OF A BORE.

BY G. P. LAYTHROP.

Yes, we shall miss him very much,
Despite his faults, for he was such,
A wonderful perfect bore;
A human anger, so to speak,
And one that, by a curious freak,
As it grew duller it pierced the more.

The Honorable Alfred Tot—
It was our heart's mournful lot
To bear this trifle name—set sail
Upon a whimsical sea lark;
His oily words, poured round the bark,
He knew would still the wildest gale.

But his relentless larynx brought
A fate of which he'd never thought;
A few weeks on the Captain died,
By rapid chat completely floored;
The crew fled madly—overboard,
And Tot was left in lonely pride.

Yet he kept up, through sun or fog,
The ship's and his own mono-loque;
He talked the storm down, and at last,
With many a pensive, lingering quail,
Amid a wife and death-tired calm,
On Patagonia's shore was cast.

The ill-bred natives planned to eat him—
That was the only way to beat him;
They wished to banquet him; and what
In view of their scant larder shelf,
Could do more honor to himself,
Than to serve him up smoking hot?

"But," said their chief, "life's very dull;
Take heed, take heed, before you cull
So fair a flower as this. If we Should slay him now, no doubt it would Be quite exciting, but how should We next enliven our ennui?"

That saved the Captain's life. And now,
Pondering it o'er with thoughtful brow,
I'm led to this profound belief;
We do not kill our horses, because
We know each time they hold their jaws,
Our ennui finds such sweet relief.

The Cost of a Boy.

It will be a good thing for all boys, and girls, too, to get some idea—in real figures —of what their parents do for them. The Rev. P. B. Fisk gives a lecture on the cost of a boy. He computes that at the age of fifteen a good boy receiving the advantages of city life will cost, counting compound interest on the amount invested, not less than $5,000. At the age of twenty-one he will not cost any more unless he goes to college, when he will cost nearly twice as much. A bad costs boy about $10,000 at 21 provided he does go, he cost as much more.

Mr. Fisk thinks that girls are nearly as expensive as boys. The computation however, comprises only the pecuniary cost of raising a boy. The value of the mother's tears and the father's gray hairs are beyond the reach of figures to express. The money side is by far the lesser of the two.

The Catholics of the Cincinnati and Cleveland Dioceses have raised considerable over $12,000 for the German flood sufferers.

The Coroner's jury in the Newhall case at Milwaukee have been considering the evidence for two days and are not yet able to agree.

Dr. Lepsius has been sent from Berlin as an expert to give an opinion upon the origin of what are known as the Athenian marbles.

Going West.

A young man in the older communities of the East, reading of the marvelous growth of this new Western country, often asks himself whether he could not wisely join the ranks of the next annual migration. No doubt the question, "Shall I go West?" is the uppermost problem in the minds of thousands of the young men of the East, who have still their careers to make, and have not yet gained a secure and promising footing in the business world. It is a question which each must answer for himself, and concerning which no advice can be given that would be of universal application. It would be a grievous mistake to suppose that a change of longitude alone insures success. Idleness, incompetency, and a nerveless, drifting disposition, have no better chance in Montana than in Massachusetts. Indeed, there are some men who run along fairly well in the East, in the grooves of custom and of established acquaintance and business connections, who would make lamentable shipwreck if set adrift in a new Western community.

On the other hand, the chances for a young man of average pluck and energy are unquestionably much better in the West than in the East. He shares the advantages of being among the first to open a fresh store-house of natural wealth. He gets the first dividend on the increase of value resulting from bringing population upon the soil. The land he buys for three or four dollars an acre, or gets for nothing by homestead settlement, soon becomes worth ten or fifteen. If he embarks in trade or in any mechanical pursuit, his wares or his services are in brisk demand, because all the new-comers around him require goods and implements. Then there is a certain stimulus in the moral atmosphere caused by the ambitions and energies of a new community full of hope and activity, which makes hardships easy to bear and causes buoyancy of spirits.

Western people find it hard to make their friends in the East understand just what they mean when they speak of the difference in the business and social tone of the two sections. It is a difference to be felt rather than defined. There is vastly more energy and more hope per capita of the population in new communities than old, and the immigrant feels at once the resulting stimulus. It braces up the listless and the desponding, and makes even the most active man conclude that there is a deal more in him in the way of work and ideas than he supposed. Many a young man who would have remained a clerk or small-salaried employee of some kind all his life, had he stayed in the East, becomes, amid the larger opportunities of the West, a "leading citizen," and the owner of a fine farm or a prosperous business.

The young man going West can, therefore, count upon the opportunities of obtaining good land at small cost, the business openings growing out of the wants of a new community, and the moral incentive that comes from contact with hopeful, enterprising people. If he does not succeed in gaining a full measure of independence in the course of ten years, the reason will lie in his own disposition. He will either lack energy and capacity, or he will be so much a creature of habit and so thoroughly the outgrowth of an older civilization that he can not adjust himself to the new environments. There are men, as well as trees, that will not thrive when transplanted. The intending emigrant would do well to study his own disposition carefully, and make sure that he is not of that kind.

--Cream Biscuit: One pint of sour cream not too rich, one teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda and four enough to make a little stiffer than baking-powder biscuit. Do not knead or work the dough much. Roll to medium thickness, and bake in a moderately hot oven. --Country Gentleman.

--Henry Ward Beecher made his Brooklyn audience laugh recently by the remark: "The age of miracles is not yet past, as was proved to me this afternoon by the return of an umbrella which I left in a sleeping car last week." --Brooklyn Eagle.
